BAIST'S REAL ESTATE ATLAS OF SURVEYS OF WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

These atlases were created by George W. Baist and later by his sons. Produced in sets of four volumes (NW, NE, SW, and SE quadrants), color-coded maps show the nature of building lot-by-lot throughout the city. Among the information to be gleaned from the maps are the size and configuration of structures, exterior building materials, and existence of accessory buildings. In addition, major business and institutional uses are noted as is the location of public utilities, as well as the extent of public paved areas and parks. The following are volumes found in Special Collections:
