The George Washington University Libraries & Academic Innovation (GWLAI) seeks candidates for the Research and Instruction Librarian position. This is a full-time (40 hours/week), temporary position projected to begin in August 2018 and continue until December 2018. This position is not eligible for benefits.

The Research and Instruction Librarian will provide research and information literacy instruction to GW students. This includes partnering with faculty in first-year research and writing courses to plan and offer course-integrated research sessions. In addition to developing and offering classroom instruction, this position will hold in-depth, one-on-one research consultations with students and faculty on a variety of topics and provide basic reference assistance via chat, email, and phone. The Research and Instruction Librarian will perform other related duties as assigned.

The Research and Instruction Librarian will be a member of the Research and User Services team and report to a Director of Research Services.

Minimum Qualifications: The ideal candidate will possess the following qualifications:

- Master’s degree (or significant coursework completed) in library and/or information science from an ALA-accredited program or equivalent.
- Instruction experience.
- Experience providing basic research/reference assistance.
- Demonstrate a commitment to providing excellent customer service.
- Demonstrate effective oral and written communication skills.
- Demonstrate the ability to work independently and collaboratively.

Application Instructions: Only complete applications will be considered. To be considered, please submit your curriculum vitae and cover letter that includes an assessment of skills related to basic qualifications to Bill Gillis, Director of Research Services, gillis@gwu.edu. Review of applications will begin August 6, 2018, and the position will be open until filled.
